

The large oak tree in Orchard Hill, Little Billing, which toppled over during high winds
Picture by reader PETER NEVE

Mighty oak is felled by wind

HIGH winds and suspected disease caused a mature oak tree to plunge into a busy Northampton street over the weekend.

The large tree brought Orchard Hill, in Little Billing to a standstill on Sunday, when it fell into the road at 2.15pm.

Peter Neve, aged 63, who lives nearby, heard the tree fall.

"It came down right into the road, it is really lucky it didn't hit anybody," he said.

"Someone called the police and they arrived pretty quickly and closed off the road, which was completely blocked. It remained blocked for several hours and it wasn't until the evening that they reopened it.

"There are no bus routes on that road but it is a very busy road and is used by people travelling to Weston Favell."

Tree surgeons have since visited the scene and it is believed that tree was diseased.

More fashion in the centre

FASHION savvy shoppers in Northampton will be able to show off their latest wardrobe purchases when a national women's magazine features the Grosvenor Centre in a forthcoming issue.

More magazine, apparently one of the favourite choices of national fashion reads among young women, has chosen Northampton's main shopping centre as a destination for its popular feature "Look What I Bought!"

The weekly double-page fashion feature involves the team from More going around the country asking young ladies "What have you bought?", taking a snap of them with their shopping bags and a snap with them wearing their new clothes.

A pop up tent is used to ensure a quick change and provide privacy.

The Grosvenor Centre was chosen by the magazine after More readers voted the shopping centre as a favourite place to shop.

Centre manager Sheridan New said: "We are delighted to have been chosen for this feature in a national magazine. It is a great chance for all the most fashion conscious shoppers in Northampton to be noticed and really show off their sense of style."

The crew from More will be in the shopping centre on Saturday, September 11, and the feature will appear in the magazine's following issue.

Pilot's bracelet found at dig

A team of aeroplane experts and archaeologists uncovered the remains of a B-17 Flying Fortress which crashed near Blakesley on October 11, 1944. Among the items found were boots worn by the crew and the pilot's identity bracelet.

CUP BONANZA

Cobblers draw will see club back in black

COBBLERS' exciting draw against Premiership big guns Liverpool will balance the books at the Sixfields club for this season.

The football club regularly runs at a loss but the aim in recent years has been to at least break even.

Now Town's coffers could be swelled by as much as £300,000 with their share of the gate receipts for the Carling Cup fixture at Anfield and that will take them into profit for the campaign.

But chairman David Cardoza stressed that unless the tie is televised, which would add £175,000 to the night's profits, manager Ian Sampson will not see a dramatic change in his wage bill.

"The money we make from this game will cover the season," he said. "Which means we will be going into next season as a self-sufficient club. That has to come first, and then, if we do get television, Sammo and I will be having a chat."

"At the moment, it keeps our head above water for the rest of the season and secures our immediate future. We've worked really hard over the past couple of years to get a decent squad of players here on a smaller budget than we've had before."

The third round game will take place on Wednesday, September 22 (ko 8pm) and Mr Cardoza added: "It's a fantastic draw for the supporters, for the club and hopefully for the bank balance as well."

"It's hard to say how much money we will make from the game, but it'll be a decent amount."

"As a chairman, I look at the draw in terms of the money it's going to make the club first and foremost, but it's going to be a great night."

Some of the teenagers from Eastfield who visited The National Mountain Centre in Wales as part of a scheme funded by the Lottery

CE picture by SHARON LUCEY mnce-24-08-10-SL-13

TEENAGERS from some of Northampton's most deprived estates have visited The National Mountain Centre in Wales as part of a project to enable youngsters to experience the outdoors.

Thirteen young people aged from 13 to 16 visited Plas y Brenin for two days last week as Part of the Change Scene project, a scheme funded by Natural England as part of its Access to Nature programme, funded by £25 million from the Big Lottery Fund's Changing Spaces programme.

Anna King, youth leader for the Eastfield Youth Group, said:

"On Wednesday we went up Moel Siabod, which is 872m high in three-and-a-half hours.

"Yesterday we did two full days canoeing and some of the kids started training towards their first star in canoeing. We also visited a climbing wall. All of the kids had a lovely time."

The next Change of Scene trip which is open to kids from Eastfield, Bellinge, Blackthorn and Goldings, and Rectory Farm, is a four day trip to the Brecon Beacons in October.

Those interested in getting involved can contact Tim Howells on 07969 050907.

MOT your home and save energy

Source www.pilkington.co.uk

A combination of a 'Big Freeze' winter, rising fuel costs and the drive towards reducing our carbon footprint, means we're all looking for new ways to stay warm while keeping costs down.

And a new survey shows energy-efficiency is top of the list for home-buyers too. The Pilkington energiKare™ 'MOT Your Home' research reveals that 76 per cent of homebuyers now rate it as a major deciding factor when purchasing property.

Loft insulation, an energy-efficient boiler, energy-efficient heating, energy-efficient windows and cavity insulation were the five findings most of us were concerned with.

1. Loft insulation (80 per cent)
2. Energy efficient boiler (79 per cent)
3. Energy efficient heating (74 per cent)
4. Energy efficient windows (73 per cent)
5. Cavity insulation (62 per cent)

But as we weigh up the cost of one of the coldest winters for 30 years and wait for our updated fuel bill to arrive there are some simple steps we can all take to make our homes more energy and cost-efficient.

TV presenter and architect, George Clarke best-known for Channel 4's The Home Show – has teamed up with Pilkington to suggest changes we can all make. As he says: 'It's reassuring to know that more and more people are taking their home and their carbon footprint seriously, after all our homes are the biggest investments we are ever likely to make. What's important is that people are taking steps to change and recognising the added value greener living brings, such as cost savings and increasing the saleability of homes. "Installing good-quality loft insulation is one of the most effective energy-saving jobs homeowners can do, which is good news as 80 per cent of homebuyers in this survey consider it the most important green factor when buying a new home. You could chop a whopping £150 annually off the average energy bill by installing insulation that is 270mm thick. "Another big saving over time is replacing the windows with more energy-efficient glazing. This can cut fuel bills by 20 per cent over their lifetime. Pilkington energiKare™ glazing, for example, can reduce heat loss by up to 90 per cent, compared to single-glazed windows, and at the same time allow in more heat from the sun. Even turning down the thermostat and fitting energy saving light bulbs can make a difference and be done instantly and cost effectively." The research carried out about by Pilkington energiKare™ also revealed that the installation of solar panels and self-cleaning windows were two of the most popular areas for home improvement among homeowners looking to add value by going green.

Julia Berkin, Marketing Communications Manager at Pilkington comments: "This last winter has certainly led more people to re-evaluate the energy efficiency of their homes and it's encouraging to see that despite the recent recession, people are continuing to place sustainable living high on their agenda."

Upgrading from single glazing to Pilkington energiKare™ energy efficient double-glazing could save more than £10,000 in fuel bills over the lifetime of the windows. Promising energy-efficient solutions for every style of home, the advanced glazing technology reduces the amount of heat lost through windows while allowing more heat from the sun in, helping to create a warmer environment. This offsets the normal central heating used to heat the home.

Top of the town's talent

SINGING duo Tony Henry and Jamie Georcelin were crowned winners of Northampton's Got Talent 2010 at the end of a high quality grand final watched by a crowd of more than 400 people in Market Square.

The pair, known as Ceasar and Jam D, secured first place in the competition after performing a spectacular version of one of their own songs featuring two drummers and plenty of audience interaction.

The top prize for winning the competition was £500 shopping vouchers in the Grosvenor Centre and a part in this year's pantomime at The Deco theatre.

Tony said: "We are just over the moon. The anticipation was high and we could not wait to get on stage."

"We love getting the crowd involved as it is all about crowd participation."

The eight contestants who performed in the grand final on Saturday had all progressed through a two-week audition process and a semi-final.

Before the winner was announced, singer Chesney Hawkes appeared on stage to promote the fact he is starring as Aladdin in this year's pantomime at The Deco theatre.

Speaking to the Mercury & Citizen, Chesney said: "I thought the acts were really great and really different."

"I think Tony and Jamie have got great voices and lots of potential."

The judges for the final were Michael Twain, the director of Aladdin, talent scout Toni Jones and Britain's Got Talent star Aidan Davis.

Mr Davis performed twice during the event and then took to the stage as part of an impromptu street dancing duo, with 17-year-old finalist Joel Thomas.

Commenting on the performance of his dance partner, Mr Davis said: "I think Joel is really good and has got a lot of potential to become even better."

Mr Twain, who will now have to find a part for Tony and Jamie in the pantomime, said he had been impressed with the standard of the final.

He said: "There was amazing variety in the show and I thought the standard of talent was very good."

Friends Tony Henry and Jamie Georcelin celebrate winning Northampton's Got Talent 2010 in front of a crowd of more than 400 people. Watch video of this event at www.northamptonchron.co.uk

Call to cut road signs

The A428 between East Haddon and Duston has been highlighted as particularly bad for the number of road signs COUNTRYSIDE campaigners in Northamptonshire have applauded calls to cull the number of road signs, as they believe one county road has around 140 signs on a three-mile stretch.

Communities Secretary Eric Pickles last week urged councils to "cut the clutter" by reducing the number of road signs, railings and advertising hoardings, which he said was damaging the character of towns and villages.

The Campaign to Protect Rural England (CPRE) in Northamptonshire is celebrating the news after spending years campaigning to tidy up Northamptonshire's roads.

One particular road it is concerned about is the A428, where it believes there are around 140 road signs on the three-mile stretch from East Haddon to Duston.

Peter Hopkins, vice-chairman of CPRE Northamptonshire, said: "That is the worst road that I know of in the Northampton area, we have had quite a few complaints about an excess of signs there."

"As an organisation we have been trying to limit the number of signs for a long time. A combination of national government regulations, local authorities and business signs mean there are so many people can't take in all the information.

"It is one of those things that has just built up over time - a new sign here, a new sign there and you end up with 12 to 15 signs on a small stretch of road."

Mike Pepper, chairman of Duston Parish Council, said: "Road signs should be directional or warnings. There are too many pointless ugly signs."

A spokesman for Northamptonshire County Council said: "It's all about achieving a balance between safety and aesthetics. Signs are erected where they are needed."

Lion guest

THE Moosterious Lion, which until recently was residing at the Chron's offices in Upper Mounts, can now be found at the Park Inn hotel in Silver Street, Northampton.

He will be there until tomorrow before heading off to a secret location until he returns to the hotel for a charity auction of all the Pride of Northampton lions on Thursday, September 23.

Little horses at big show

SOME of the world's smallest stars were in Northampton on Monday for one of the biggest competitions in the miniature horse world.

The tiny horses were all taking part in the Miniature Horse Club of Great Britain's Championship Show at Moulton College.

One of the big winners was Scarborough horse lover Peter Smith, who won the keenly fought male solid colour competition with his horse Lucky Four Black Velvet Bucking Black.

He said thousands of people across the world took part in both keeping and showing the small horses, which are all only a few feet tall.

He said: "There are a lot of people who are into it, it's very popular."

"The bonus with them is you can keep them in a large garden, you don't need acres of fields, and they're really lovely animals. It becomes a real passion for everybody involved, but the competitions are also good fun."

The special guest at the Moulton show was world class American judge Joyce Swanson, who judged the classes.

Miniature horses were first bred as pets for the children of royalty in the 1600s.

They have developed from years of selective breeding.

Raising a glass

DRINKERS made the most of the Bank Holiday weekend with a beer festival at a resurgent town centre pub.

The Lamplighter, in Overstone Road, has been named as a finalist in the Community Pub of the Year awards and the popular boozer, which has enjoyed something of a renaissance in recent months, held a beer festival at the weekend.

Landlord Paul Hanna, who recently celebrated a year in charge at the pub, was on hand to serve a huge range of local beers and ciders while live music was provided by the Voodoo Amplifier DJs and a set from local singer/songwriter Sara Spade.

The event continued on Monday with a barbecue in the beer garden throughout the afternoon and an open mic session in the evening.

A number of locally brewed guest beers were available over the weekend, including tipples from Phipps brewery, Great Oakley brewery and the Pot Belly brewery.

Stars in tribute to composer

THE life and works of Northampton-born composer Sir Malcolm Arnold will be celebrated during a festival at the Royal & Derngate in October.

The fifth annual Arnold Festival will feature a lively programme of concerts, film screenings and talks and will be launched by BAFTA award winning actress Hayley Mills.

Sir Malcolm Arnold is a legendary figure in British music history, writing hugely successful and popular music for the concert hall, the stage and the cinema.

He composed more than 70 scores for major feature films, including The Bridge On the River Kwai, for which he won an Oscar, The Belles of St Trinian's and Whistle Down the Wind.

As well as opening the festival, actress Hayley Mills will talk to artistic director Paul Harris about the films she and her father, John Mills, made with Arnold.

At Sunday's Celebrating St Trinian's event, many of the actors and crew from the original films will be reunited, and Arnold's St Trinian's Suite, along with other memorable film music, will be included in a concert given by the Northamptonshire County Youth Orchestra.

Other highlights of the weekend include talks by film music experts Martin Ellerby and Neil Brand, best known as Paul Merton's partner in his touring show Silent Clowns.

He will also look at Arnold's comedy films while Ellerby discusses the art of the film composer.

Winds halt the hover racing

STRONG winds left two pilots in hospital during the World Hovercraft Championships in Towcester over the bank holiday weekend.

Gusts of up to 50mph were recorded at Towcester Racecourse on Sunday, leading to a number of accidents and races having to be cancelled.

Hovercraft pilot Chris Daly, who helped run the event, said: "There were a couple of wind-related accidents, two people had to be taken to hospital, one with a broken hip, but considering the number of races we had over the weekend, that number of injuries is actually quite low."

The championship is held once every two years and this weekend was the first time the event has been held in Britain in the past 10 years.

Mr Daly said: "Overall, I think we just about beat the elements and we had some very good, competitive racing."

"We've also had a lot of people coming in to have a look around and watch the races

The World Hovercraft Championships at Towcester Racecourse

because they like seeing something unusual."

Over the course of the championships, a total of 193 competitors took part in the event.

But as the wind built up on Sunday afternoon, the crowds of hundreds who had flocked to the event had to make do with displays from remote control hovercraft as racing was postponed because of safety fears.

Then, just after 5pm, stewards at the course announced no further racing would be held because of the risk of the hovercraft flipping over as they battled against the strong gusts.

Alfa Romeo Giulietta

REVIEW BY IAN
DONALDSON

Giulietta is a class beater

ALFA Romeo has spent a century producing cars that people talk about, one way or another.

Often they've been simply stunning to look at, sometimes so ugly you wonder if they were designed in the dark.

Others have been a frisky delight to drive, but too many ended up overweight disappointments.

When the stars have been aligned at Alfa's design centre the results rank among the finest cars to drive at the price and with looks you'll want to linger over as the garage door closes.

Recent Alfas have lacked little in the looks department; trouble is, they haven't lacked enough when put on the scales. The result has been a succession of cars that didn't quite live up to their lines.

Which makes this centenary debut, the Giulietta hatchback, an important introduction to the Alfa line. No more excuses, this one had better be good.

The omens are hopeful when the figures show only a modest weight gain over the smaller, less well equipped Alfa 147 that the newcomer replaces. It is also usefully lighter than the opposition in the shape of the latest Golf and Astra.

Then you look under the bonnet and discover one Giulietta comes with an engine enjoying the improbable mix of small capacity and ferocious output (1.4 litres and 170 horses) that ought to provide the spirit any Alfa deserves.

And of course, there's the handsome sheet metal wrapped around it all. With the handles for the rear doors hidden at the rear of the side windows, the Giulietta looks more coupe than hatch. The big Alfa grille dominates the front of the car, while rows of little red LEDs give the rear an identity all its own, especially at night.

Inside, the designers have created a cockpit that teeters on the edge of form over function, with deeply recessed main instruments that are hard to read at a glance and a trip computer readout in red that simply vanishes in the sunlight.

We'll let that go as an endearing design quirk (along with nowhere to rest your clutch foot) and concentrate instead on the many things this Alfa gets right.

Most impressive of all is the way the car soaks up the worst a British road can throw at it, while remaining alert and poised and just begging for the next corner to arrive. We can thank a brand new platform under the car and new suspension system for that; an expensive move but badly needed.

Then there's the engine in this test car, a 170 horsepower Multiair Lusso and likely biggest seller in the range. It pulls in an energetically Alfa way, yet sinks into the background at a steady cruise, making for a surprisingly relaxed companion. My car showed 34mpg after a drive designed to show off the Giulietta's sportier side.

There's a three-way switch to select normal, sporty or wet-road characteristics from the accelerator and steering; sporty (Dynamic in Alfa speak) suited the car perfectly; making it eager and firming up the already accurate steering.

The newcomer starts at £16,995 for the 120bhp Lusso and tops out with the £24,495 Cloverleaf (205bhp, fast, hard riding) and takes in a couple of diesels (105 and 170bhp).

Me? I'd take the 170 horsepower Lusso and enjoy the best new Alfa for a very long time.

We were a shambles, says furious Sammo

COBBLERS boss Ian Sampson branded his team a 'shambles' after their heavy defeat at Hartlepool United on Tuesday night, and said the players let the supporters down.

Town were crushed 4-0 at Victoria Park, with all four goals coming in nine disastrous second-half minutes, to end their interest in this season's Johnstone's Paint Trophy.

At no stage did Sampson's men look like scoring, and afterwards the manager was suitably scathing in his assessment of a performance he rates as the worst since he took the Northampton job.

"That was the worst we've played since I've been in charge," he said. "I've told the players exactly what I thought of them, and that's that they were a shambles."

"It was an absolute shambles; we didn't apply ourselves properly and I could see it coming after five minutes."

"We were very poor from back to front in terms of our quality. We didn't provide any sort of service to our front men and I can take one or two players out of it, but generally all of them put in poor performances.

"I'm happy that Chris Dunn is back in and he made some good saves in the first half and no blame can be attached to him for any of the goals."

"I don't think we've ever been like that since I came to the club and I was very disappointed with how we played."

Just 59 Northampton supporters made the long journey to the north-east last night and backed the team vocally right to the end, even when it became clear their team was going to finish on the wrong end of a hiding.

Sampson paid tribute to their loyalty, and said the team let them down.

"The fans were fantastic and they deserve a big thank-you from myself and all the players," he said.

"It was fantastic of 59 of them to come up and support us and we disappointed them and let them down."

"They were very good throughout the game. They are the real loyal supporters that turned up for this game and we let them down."

BAD NIGHT - the frustration shows on the face of striker Billy McKay during the Cobblers' 4-0 defeat at Hartlepool

Town in money

COBBLERS chairman David Cardoza has confirmed that proceeds from the money-spinning Carling Cup third-round game at Liverpool will put the club in the black for the season.

The football club regularly runs at a loss but the aim in recent years has been to at least break even.

The playing budget was reduced this summer with that in mind, while other cuts have also been made around Sixfields.

Cardoza has confirmed that unless the September

22 tie is televised, which would add £175,000 to the profits for the night, manager Ian Sampson will not see a dramatic change in his wage bill.

"That has to come first, and then if we do get television, Sammo and I will be having a chat."

"At the moment, it keeps our head above water for the rest of the season."

Mallinder: My Saints can only get better

JIM MALLINDER has told his England players there is plenty of room for improvement.

With the season just four days away and Saints preparing for an almighty clash against champions and east midlands rivals Leicester, Mallinder has told his England stars they should take nothing for granted.

Courtney Lawes, Ben Foden, Chris Ashton and Dylan Hartley have all been included in Martin Johnson's Elite Player Squad as they look to secure a place for next year's World Cup in New Zealand.

But Mallinder has warned that they can still learn more about the game and he wants to see that thirst for knowledge and improvement continue.

Mallinder said: "You should never forget that even your international players, they can all improve, they can all be coached."

"Even if they are playing for England it certainly doesn't mean they are the finished article. As long as players have got that awareness and desire to be coached and learn and want to improve then you will always want them in your squad."

"It is great to work with young players, but our squad as a whole is good to work with. They all want to improve and you need that."

Mallinder has made 12 signings over the summer, with eight of them 25 or under and English.

But he has brought some old heads in as well, like locks Mark Sorenson and Adam Eustace to offer some experience.

The Saints boss believes his squad is deeper and stronger because of the new recruits and is looking forward to them challenging his established stars.

"I look forward to seeing all of them play," said Mallinder.

"We have got a good squad now and I think all the squad are capable of playing first team rugby."

"It is not a clear first 15 we have got, we have got some real good strength in depth in all positions now."

"The scrum-half position is a really good example of that, we have got Lee Dickson and now Ryan Powell who has come in fresh and is training really well."

"Then there is Stuart Commings, who has come over from South Africa. He is young, has loads to learn but already he is a talent at scrum-half."

"And we have got young Ryan Glynn and we saw in the sevens competition what he can do. He is quick, he gets the ball away, so we have got some real good options in all positions."
